ABOUT...

- Justin is a true LA native who has never lived anywhere else but in the City of Angels. He is a first-generation Korean-American, as his family moved to the US from Korea before he was born. His parents were never married and split when Justin was just 4-years-old, so he never got to know his dad very well. After the breakup, Justin and his mom moved in with his aunt and his cousins in a 1-bedroom apartment, where he lived until he was 11-years-old.
- Music has always been something he loved, as he started singing and dancing at 4-years-old. In fact, he was inspired by his mom, who was a professional dancer in Korea. When Justin was in high school, he performed a Bruno Mars song at a talent show and won – and it's where his career took a whole new turn. He knew he had found his life's passion, but his mom was adamant about him getting a good education and staying in school. When he told her he'd rather pursue music than go to college, she wasn't thrilled at first, but she later supported his career once she saw the fruits of his labor.
- For the past 7 years, Justin has been hustling to make it in the music industry. He writes all his own music and practically lives in the recording studio. In the past 2 years, he has earned more than 25K+ followers on TikTok and is amassing more with every post. He also has 42K+ YouTube subscribers with 7.2M views on his channel, as well as nearly 14M streams on Spotify Justin has performed during two massive American tours with former K-Pop superstar, Amber Liu (one in 2017 and one in 2019, to a combined 32 cities).
- His ultimate dream is to not only become a massive star in the world of pop music, but Justin wants to also show the world that Asians don't have to adhere to traditional Asian stereotypes when pursuing their dreams.
