ABOUT...

- Kandace, a small-town Oklahoma girl, is the youngest of 3 children. When she was 13-years-old, her father passed away, so Kandace's mother stepped up to fully support the family.
- She started singing in church at 3-years-old, and soon joined the choir. She was able to book gigs in musicals, as well as performances at various local talent shows. When it came time for college, Kandace first studied Forensic Science, but quickly decided to give the subject up, in favor of studying Music. Since finishing school, she has been working 24/7 to become a success in the music industry.
- Although she has been able to build her career independently, Kandace admits the music scene in Oklahoma has never been very fruitful. In fact, she says it has hindered her from taking her singing career to the next level. Kandace feels she just needs the right stage – and the right people – to hear her music... and her talent will take care of the rest.
- Kandace recently released her debut independent EP in November. However, even with the recent project release, Kandace ultimately feels at a standstill in her career and knows there has to be more out there for her. In the mean time, she has been able to use her TikTok success thus far to garner brand partnerships on the platform, including deals with Coldest Water (water bottle company) and Scener (a digital extension allowing users to stream shows and movies socially with friends).
- To pay the bills, Kandace works as a social media manager and a seamstress for her sister's businesses. After a long work day, that's when she says the real effort begins – she hits the studio at night, writing and recording new music.
