ABOUT...

- Nathan was born in Long Beach, but moved to Memphis at 4-years-old. He comes from a small family as an only child raised by a single mom. His mom introduced him to music at a very young age. His idol was always Michael Jackson, whom Nathan would listen to constantly, emulating his vocals and dance moves. Nathan was bullied because of his love for MJ, but nonetheless, he used Michael's music as a way to keep his head up during tough times.
- Nathan began performing in front of crowds when he was in middle school. His mom was his primary vocal and dance coach, even helping him write his own original songs. In 2012, his mom agreed to move with Nathan to Los Angeles, where they've been doing everything they can to get Nathan's career off the ground.
- When it comes to genre, Nathan considers himself to be a blend of pop, R&B, hip-hop and soul. He once wrote a song for major artists Chinx and Jeremih called, "Thug Love." He joined TikTok in 2019 and quickly began gaining followers. Since then, he has amassed an astounding 14 million followers on the platform. He also has 500K+ subscribers on his YouTube channel.
- Nathan's overall goal in music would be to go on a world tour, while spreading a positive message with his lyrics. He feels as though the market is saturated with negative messages, so he'd like to be a light in the industry. Nathan also wants to represent for kids who deal with bullying and show them they can rise above anything to pursue their dreams.
